Mechanics:

Before stepping up to bar:

1. Check glassware. Make sure they are all the same. Polish to remove water stains.
2. Prepare garnishes. Fruit should be freshly cut and on a pick if using one. Present the garnish on a bread and butter plate or on the rim of a glass.
3. Everything you need including all ingredients, glassware, tools, and garnishes are carried to the bar on a cloth napkin lined tray.

When your number is called:

1. Carry your tray to the bar. Remove everything from the tray, glasses in front of you and everything in view of the judges. All labels should face outward. Take your time. The clock will not start until you are ready.
2. When the clock begins, start pouring your ingredients, presenting each ingredient to the audience, no order is necessary although pouring the sponsors product for first is a sign of acknowledgement to that brand.
3. Shake. Always shake away from the audience. The top lip of the tin should face away. Smile! A good attitude scores points.
4. Pour. Starting from your left to right, fill each glass halfway, then go back and finish filling the glasses. If using two shakers, make sure you fill the glasses evenly from the first shaker and finish with the second.
5. Neatness counts! There is a column on the judging sheet named "Proficiency" which awards points based on neatness, spillage and overall confidence behind the bar.

6. Add garnish and straws if you are using them.
7. Present your cocktail to the audience. Again, smile. The clock stops once you present your drink.
